“Eid Al Fitr” Message

The enduring values of unity, peace, and empathy, which have come to define us, are honoured on this cherished occasion, which is steeped in spiritual significance and tradition. A time of festivity and communal unity characterises the conclusion of Eid Al Fitr, the Festival of Breaking the Fast. This occasion transcends religious and cultural barriers, serving as a poignant reminder of our universal humanity and shared aspirations. We reassert our dedication to principles of compassion, generosity and mutual respect, embracing the lessons learned during the holy month of Ramadan.

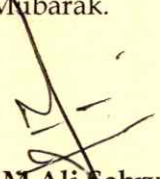

This year, as we join in the Eid celebrations, let us also pause to reflect on the challenges we face both locally and globally. May the joyful essence of Eid motivate us to extend a helping hand in solidarity and support for those requiring it, thereby fostering an inclusive community that values and respects the dignity of each person.

We are reminded, especially today, of the resilience and unity that define Sri Lanka. Our nation, a tapestry of diverse cultures and faiths, stands as a testament to the strength found in diversity. As we move forward, let the principles of Eid guide our collective efforts towards nurturing a peaceful, prosperous, and harmonious Sri Lanka. To our friends around the world, I extend a message of friendship and goodwill. In the true spirit of the festival, Let us strengthen our determination to overcome barriers and foster a global community characterised by partnership and understanding.

As we strive for greater success in the pursuit of peace and unity, may this Eid Al Fitr be more than a time for festivities. Let keep the people of Gaza in our prayers, and work towards a just and peaceful resolution to the difficulties they are going through. By working tirelessly to forge a more promising future for all, we can collectively uphold the principles that this day embodies.

May you and your loved ones be blessed with happiness, health, and prosperity.

Eid Mubarak.
